Topic Description

A family tree is a map of your direct lineage. Each person is one "branch" with you as the "trunk". Include your parents, grandparents, and great grandparents. You may go back an additional generation if you wish. Siblings can be listed with you on the trunk. If you prefer, you can make a chart instead of a tree. Each name should include first, middle, maiden (when appropriate), and last names. Each name should also include the year and place born. Make sure to ask your parents for help with this information. You may wish to include a flag or flags that represent your ethnic heritage.
